350 Workers
Employed at Plants Here

The sweet corn canning season was running at its peak this week, with almost 350 workers handling a crop said to be better than that of last year.

At both the Fayette Canning Company on West East Street and the Ladoga Canning Company on South Sycamore, long lines of trucks waited to discharge corn fresh from fields in the county. Long yellow ears passed through lines of men and women working at sorting tables and eventually found their way into tin cans.

From the plants came the smell of sweet corn being handled in the cook room, in the cutters and in the blenders. Its aroma emitted from the huskers and some of its juice splattered on downtown streets from trucks which hauled away husks and other left overs.

The Ladoga Co. reported there were approximately 190 workers engaged in the canning operation while the Fayette Canning Company reported it had about 160 on its payroll.

Harry Hyer, manager of the Ladoga Co. said production at the South Sycamore plant was running about a carload and a half a day.

He said the production on a typical day totaled 82,017 small cans and 95, 531 larger cans.

Approximately 221 tons of raw corn was used in the production process Wednesday, he estimated.

Both plants will have at least another big week then plant managers expect the volume to gradually taper off.

Stanley Simons of Plain City is the manager of the Fayette Canning Co. which is a branch of the Stokley Foods Inc.

The Ladoga Canning Company is a branch of the Ladoga Canning Company of Indianapolis.

Peru Breaks with Cuba

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 20—(AP)—Peru broke off diplomatic relations with Cuba yesterday.

The government delivered a note to the Cuban charge d'affaires charging that Cuba had helped two members of the outlawed Aprista party to flee Peru for Cuba, and consequently the Peruvian government "cannot continue relations with the Cuban government."

There are several species of mammal capable of true flight. This particular one was of reddish-brown in color, and apparently did not like the cigar box in which he was imprisoned to bring him to this office for identification.

Gene said he was going to try to keep the bat, but if he does I'll bet he has fun feeding it, because the bat lives largely on gnats and other insects which it catches while on the wing.

Federal Streamlining
Completed for Present

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(AP)—Seven federal agencies were shifted or streamlined today. That just about completes government reorganization for this year.

No more major changes are likely until 1950.

Congress and President Truman, by means of five laws and six reorganization plans, have gone part of the way in carrying out the recommendations of the commission headed by former president Herbert Hoover.

Robert L. L. McCormick director of the Washington office of the citizens committee for reorganization—an outfit created to work for the Hoover commission's proposals—told a reporter:

"The accomplishments up to now have far exceeded our expectations, but some of the most important legislation is still before us and the road is long."

Here is the score for 1949:

Six reorganization plans took effect today (technically at midnight last night). The U. S. Employment Service and certain other functions moved into the Labor Department. The Bureau of Public Roads moved into the Commerce Department. The No. 1 officials in the Post Office Department, Civil Service Commission, and Maritime Commission got more administrative authority. The National Security Resources Board and National Security Council became parts of the executive office.

Cripple Attacked
By Five Women

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20—(AP)—A 57-year-old cripple was attacked and robbed by five Negro women today near the entrance to a hospital where he had gone for treatment.

The victim was Ernest Povenger, a pipefitter.

The women, three of whom were captured, took his wallet containing $6 and were attempting to remove a diamond ring. They were frightened away when a motorist noticed the struggle.

"Two of them grabbed my arms and two got my legs and another had me around the neck," Povenger explained.

The motorist, Theodore McKee of Mentor, notified Patrolman Frank E. Mazur, who succeeded in capturing the trio.

of the president.

The reorganization act of 1949 became law June 20, making possible the six plans that took effect today.

The military unification act became law Aug. 10, giving the secretary of defense more power to integrate the armed services.

Another law enacted June 2 had already created the post of under-secretary of defense.

The general services administration was created by Congress on July 1, placing the maintenance, purchasing, and property disposal agencies of the government under one roof.

A law enacted May 26 gave the secretary of state authority to reorganize the state department.

Certain other proposals were made by the president—including the creation of a department of welfare and the removal of postmaster appointments from politics—but Congress has either killed them or made little progress toward enacting them at this session.

Trail of Wreckage
Is Left by Woman

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20—(AP)—A smartly-dressed woman drove her big, flashy automobile briskly into the service station.

Her bumper caught a pop stand and a dozen bottles went flying. The car hit the oil display stand and a tire rack, and oil cans and tires went a-rolling. Then she squarely hit two gas pumps, bowled them over—and drove away.

As she passed through, attendant William Wardley told police, she smiled and said, "hello."

Three Drivers
Pay Fines For
Too Much Noise

Noticeable Decrease
In Roaring Trucks
Is Reported

War against noisy motor vehicles, declared Thursday afternoon by Police Chief Vaiden Long after warnings over a period of weeks had failed to bring noticeable results, netted three drivers during the first 24 hours.

Two of the drivers were in charge of huge commercial trucks, and the other had no muffler on his automobile.

All of the drivers pleaded guilty to charges of violating Ordinance 190—the anti-noise ordinance, and each was fined $10 and $8.70 costs. All paid.

Robert Edward Bobo, Mt. Sterling, no muffler on his auto, was the first one arrested.

George Windson Skinner, Indianapolis, and Robert H. Walthers, St. Louis, were the two heavy truck drivers who were cited.

There was a noticeable decrease in noise as word got out among truck drivers that the lid had been clamped on unnecessary noise in this city.

Huge trucks that ordinarily roared through at top speed and with no attempt to muffle the noise of the motors, moved more slowly and with a great deal less noise.

While Skinner was before Police Court Justice R. H. Sites, on a charge of having no muffler, a huge truck roared by and it was impossible for Sites to hear what Skinner was saying.

"Get that driver," Chief Long said to Traffic Officer Charles Cooper, and a few minutes later the driver, Walthers, was in court.

Both truck drivers admitted that their motors were making too much noise, and that they could drive with less noise—after a muffler could be added to one of the trucks, which was almost wholly without a muffler.

One of the drivers said his muffler broke in Pittsburgh and he had not had it repaired. Examination showed a straight pipe with a bulge in it as the only muffler.

Chief Long expressed his satisfaction over the first day's results, and said it was the best evidence in the world that much of the unnecessary noise could be stopped, and that this could be done right along.

He made it plain that no driver would be halted for what was deemed necessary noise of a motor in picking up after halting for traffic lights, or for other stops.

Sheriff Orland Hays said Friday that he also is in the move against excessive noise on the part of motor vehicles, and would pick up offenders whenever he found them.

"There has been entirely too much noise, and many of the drivers make no effort to use mufflers, so I am in the move 100 percent," Sheriff Hays said.

More Areas Slated
For Rent Decontrol

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—(AP)—Housing Expediter Tighe Woods today sought to map definite plans for cutting down the areas covered by federal rent ceilings and to curtail other rent control activities.

The exact form of decontrol will take was indefinite and confused. But Woods emphasized that at least one-third of the areas across the nation soon will have ceilings lifted.

In other regions, he said, controls will remain in effect but policing of restrictions probably will be done by citizen volunteers.

Woods yesterday reiterated previous statements that the decontrol is the result of a congressional budget slash.

Flying Saucer Clue Found?

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20—(AP)—Have the ancestors of the flying saucers turned up in Maryland?

The air force says there is a good chance that it is so.

Two old machines located by state police in a tobacco barn apparently were one man's dream of flying by rotation.

Their inventor, Jonathan E. Caldwell, has long disappeared, but his strange devices have just come to light after enduring dust and decay for a decade.

Capt. Claudius Belk of the Baltimore office of special investigation of the air force said his office had become interested in experiments, however, and had been investigating for months.

The air force's comment in Washington was that the battered old wrecks may be "prototypes" of the flying saucers—talk of which caused such a stir in the United States two summers ago.

In air force language, "prototype" means the first model from which an aircraft develops.

The two contraptions unearthed by troopers were greatly unlike. One had a little fuselage and above it a rotating disc and propeller blades.

The other was like a round cheesebox, except it had propellers above and below it. It had room for four persons. As far as has been determined it never left the ground.

Start Sewage
Plant Monday

Filtering Vats Will Form Main Part

The Christopher Co. of Columbus will start Monday to build the addition to the Washington C. H. sewage disposal plant.

The contract calls for having the project completed by late fall or early winter.

The main part of the project will be two huge circular tanks for the high speed circulating trickling filters, which, with other equipment to be added, are expected to remove practically all of the objectionable effluent before it passes from the plant into Paint Creek.

The work is being financed by a bond issued passed early in the war, some $55,000 of which is available and with $35,000 in notes issued to meet the total cost, which will be around $90,000 or about half of the estimated cost of the old type of supplemental treatment plant.

Assurance was given to City Manager W. W. Hill that ground for the project would be broken Monday morning in accordance with the contract.

Woman's Nude Body
Is Found in Hotel

OGDEN, Utah, Aug. 20—(AP)—Police questioned a former sailor until late last night in connection with the death of a tattooed blonde whose nude body was discovered yesterday in a hotel closet.

Police said the man, identified as Richard Dix Pack, 23, Pocatello, Idaho, had not signed a confession. Questioning was to be continued today. No charges have been filed.

Detective Lieut. W. K. Milligan identified the woman as Shirley V. Scott, 28, whose driver's license showed a non-existent Seattle, Wash., address.

Milligan said the victim had the name "Shirley Scott" tattooed on her thigh. Police Chief Maurice Schoof said she had been arrested in Ogden twice recently on charges of prostitution. On those occasions, Schoof said, she used the name of Connie Stewart.

It was Ogden's second strangulation slaying within a month. The nude body of teen-age Shirley Gretzinger was found in a field near Ogden July 21. She had been strangled with her underclothing. That crime is still unsolved.

Radio Girds for Fight Against Give-away Ban

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—(AP)—

Radio and television broadcasters girded today for a finish fight to save their profitable giveaway programs from the guillotine of the Federal Communications Commission.

At stake is their jackpot in sales of broadcast time running to many times the estimated $5,000,000 or more a year dished out to lucky listeners.

Industry observers predicted the American Broadcasting Co. would have plenty of company in its announced plan for a court fight against the FCC order issued yesterday to become effective Oct. 1.

While the FCC order did not flatly ban giveaways, its new rules are so stringent it appeared they would silence such shows as "Stop The Music," "Sing It Again" and "Hollywood Calling." These involve telephone calls to listeners who are required to give the correct answer to a question, clues to which have been given on the program.

The FCC said it would regard as a radio lottery a program involving prizes "dependent in whole or in part upon lot or chance," requiring the contestant to contribute something of value or requiring that he be listening to or viewing the program. The rules also limited the manner in which telephone calls could be used in connection with prize programs.

A spokesman for the Mutual Broadcasting System said the rules do not appear to affect the network's big giveaway "Queen For A Day" or other prize shows in which prizes go only to persons present at the broadcast.

The National Broadcasting Co. and Columbia Broadcasting System withheld comment while top officials scrutinized the new rules to determine whether to fight. (Please turn to Page Eight)

Cool Weather
Moving East

CHICAGO, Aug. 20—(AP)—A broad, solid mass of cool air brought record low temperatures for the date today to some points from the central and northern plains eastward across the Great Lakes region.

At Chicago, the mercury dipped to 53 degrees, the coolest Aug. 20 in weather bureau records. The previous low for the date was 55.7 degrees in 1897.

The cool air, which extended as far south as the Ohio river, was moving eastward and was expected to reach the Atlantic seaboard today.

Abortive Revolt
In Peru Blamed
On Big Syndicate

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—(AP)—A vast illicit drug ring—so powerful it sparked an abortive revolution in Peru and involved United Nations actions—was exposed here yesterday with the arrest of the alleged ringleader.

Authorities called the arrest the first high point in an international crack-down on a huge smuggling syndicate which has plied a $500,000-a-month cocaine trade between the U. S. and Peru.

American, Peruvian and U.N. authorities joined in a two-year drive to smash the ring, said to have used narcotics profits to arm insurgents in Peru in an attempt to seize control of the country.

The story of political intrigue and plotting, tied in with large-scale drug traffic, was unfolded with the seizure yesterday of the alleged ringleader, Eduardo Balarezo, 48, of Great North River, Long Island.

He is a naturalized U.S. citizen of Peruvian descent.

More than 80 persons, some of them prominent business men, have been arrested in Peru, authorities said, and 50 or 60 operatives in this country are believed connected with the ring.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Joseph P. Martin said the syndicate apparently tried recently to expand operations to Italy through efforts to contact Charles (Lucky) Luciano, exiled one-time vice king.

Balarezo was arrested aboard the liner La Guardia, which runs between New York and Italian ports. He was held in $100,000 bail by U. S. Commissioner Edward McDonald on a charge of conspiracy to smuggle cocaine from Peru.

Capt. Alfonso Mier y Teran, of the Peruvian department of investigation who has been here for two months to aid in the hunt, said Balarezo was a source of arms in the Aprista party uprising in Peru last October.

The captain said Balarezo was taken from here to Peru on a Peruvian warship in March, 1948, as a guest of Victor Haya De La Torre, chief of the now outlawed Aprista party.

Balarezo allegedly took with him $60,000 in cash and a quantity of munitions, for use by the Aprista party in its uprising. If the plot succeeded, he was to be rewarded with the post of chief of Peruvian customs, Mier said.

Job Loss Is Threat
If Steel Pay Hiked

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—(AP)—The economic research director for the U. S. Chamber of Commerce has told presidential fact-finders in the steel industry that a fourth-round wage boost probably would lead to more unemployment.

Dr. Emerson P. Schmidt, appearing in behalf of the steel companies, said yesterday that profits have begun to shrink, and that many firms simply don't have the money to pay higher wages.

He said that "even in normal prosperous years," only about half of American corporations make a taxable profit.

"At present," he added, "a growing number of companies are moving into the red. They have no profits which could be converted into wage costs."

He said a "substantial fourth-round of wage increases at present is less likely to mean higher prices and is more likely to lead to prompt layoffs and unemployment."

Drunken Husband
Is Shot by Woman

BATAVIA, Aug. 20—(AP)—Mrs. Jean Marlott, 23, mother of four small children, shot and critically wounded her husband, Kenneth, 21, at nearby Point Isabel early today, Clermont County Sheriff Clyde Dericks reported.

Marlott was taken to Cincinnati Christ Hospital. He was shot in the abdomen.

Sheriff Dericks quoted Mrs. Marlott as saying she shot her husband with a .32 caliber revolver after he came home drunk at 2 A. M., smashed furniture and beat her.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(P)—What's slower than molasses on a cold day? Creeping through it. This the story of how the Senate does it.

Back in 1934 congress passed the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act to encourage world trade.

It was sponsored and pushed by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull. It works this way:

The United States cuts tariffs on certain goods another country wants to sell us, provided that country cuts tariffs on certain goods we want to sell it.

We've made such agreements with 42 countries, upon a great variety of goods. And the act has become one of the main supports of our foreign policy.

Congress has repeatedly renewed the act since 1934 for one, two or three years at a time.

The last time congress did that was in 1948. That was a one-year renewal.

The act was scheduled to die June 30, 1949 unless before that date congress again renewed it for a year or more.

Early this year President Truman asked congress to be sure to vote the act at least another year of life before it expired on June 30.

The House, which gets its work done a lot faster than the Senate because talk is limited in the House but not in the Senate, voted last February to renew the act.

The Senate has been kicking it around ever since. Came June 30 and the Senate hadn't acted.

It's now August 20 and the Senate still hasn't acted and isn't expected to act for some weeks to come. The Senate has been behind on its whole schedule this year.

Agreements made between this country and others before June 30 are still in effect.

But, since the act officially died June 30, no new deals can be made until the act is renewed, maybe some time in September.

This has gummed up the work of a group of American trade officials who have been working in France with the representatives of 33 other countries.

The representative of those various countries, including ours, had been able to work out agreements on a number of trade deals. They had been working on them two years.

Until June 30, or before the death of the reciprocal trade agreements act, President Truman has been unable to give such approval.

Yet the United States was a prime mover in starting the talks in France.

All this, because of the Senate's tardiness, puts the U. S. in a strange spot.

Maybe nothing was lost by the delay—since the Senate is expected to approve renewal of the act—but our trade agreements have been slowed up.

Veterans Learn Scientific Farming And Practical Applications Here

Farm work by day and schooling by night may be difficult for some—but not 17 hardworking ex-GI farmers who are enrolled in the VJ-sponsored farm management course at Good Hope.

For them schooling has a real meaning—not a garble of theories which sometimes don't always hold up in real life applications. They learn by doing—by applying classroom lessons to the job of most efficiently managing farms which they own, lease or have the responsibility of handling.

They have all advanced from the two years of production courses aimed at helping them move along to management courses.

And as they have progressed in the classrooms they have made definite gains on the farm.

Their soil is more productive; their dairy herds turn out more and higher grades of milk; their farm equipment has been modernized and made more efficient and hundreds of other improvements have been effected.

Apply Classroom Lessons

Advancements on farms managed by ex-GIs in Fayette County have been made possible by the successful application of classroom learning to farm production.

Steering thought into productive channels has not been possible except for many long hours in the classroom, farm shop and in consultation with Horace Wilson, instructor.

In all, Wilson said he spent 353 hours with the present class during the past year.

The schedule calls for only 200 class hours but Wilson said the additional hours were needed for conference with small groups of ex-GIs.

Classroom work at the Good Hope school consists for the most part of teaching subject material prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Many adoptions had to be made by Wilson so that the material could be made applicable to veterans enrolled in the course here in Fayette County.

First Phase—Soil Conservation

First part of the two-year program consists of several hours of work on soil conservation, linked inexorably with efficient farm management.

After this classroom work deals with the following subject matter: (1) Cropping and livestock system. (2) Inventory of building facilities. (3) Available market outlets. (4) Machinery and power on the farm (5) Labor supply (6) Farm accounts for present organization and anticipated income for new system.

The last phase of the classroom program keeping farm accounts—is the phase which shows whether or not the classroom and on-the-farm training is paying off.

By comparing records with previous years it is possible for the ex-GIs to see what progress, if any, they are making as farm managers.

Nothing is left undone by Wilson to insure that veterans are getting results. The farm management course instructor spends at least 100 hours giving instruction on various farms.

Farm Shop, Lab Need

But everything cannot be figured out on the farm or classroom. And in these cases, the students and their instructor move into the laboratory or farm shop at the Good Hope School.

Milk is tested in the VJ-equipped laboratory to determine if top quality milk is being produced. Also veterans can find out from studies whether cows in their milk herd need culling because they are not producing enough milk.

The laboratory is used for many other purposes—for instance, soil testing to determine what chemicals are needed to make it more productive.

A check showed that 1,800 tons of lime were spread on the farms of veterans enrolled in the class last year. Three of the class members plowed nitrogen fertilizer under for corn.

The mechanical-minded members of the farm management class also found plenty of time to putter in the farm shop to discover how to repair farm equipment. Facilities for welding, building and repairing machinery are provided in the shop.

Students come to the Good Hope school from all parts of Fayette County.

Two-Year Schools

All have completed their first two years of training at one of the agricultural production schools in the county.

Action Here To Stop Truck Noise Nuisance

We extend our sincere congratulations to the police department of Washington C. H. for its effort to stop truck noise nuisance.

Promise of prompt arrest of drivers who violate the city ordinance covering this offense was the quick answer of Chief Vaiden Long to protests from local citizens.

The rising crescendo of criticism against the noise of huge trucks on this city's streets has been reaching the rampant stage.

Increasing truck traffic and the huge size of many of these vehicles, without mufflers, create a noise nuisance that is a menace to sick people in homes, stops the ordinary conversation on the street or in residences and makes telephone conversations

Yes It's August

What's the news? Well, here's a paper. It's no news that the United States gave $5,523,000,000 in total aid to China in the last 12 years. And no American would begrudge a dollar of it if he thought it did any good. Giving money to Europe proves almost as bad. Help for reoccupying liberated areas may have been of some avail, relief needs we understand because they are always with us. But most of it seems to have gone down a hole and Americans do not like that hole stuff very well anywhere.

It may be news that sea gulls have been picking up golf balls in Rhode Island but it is doubtful if it will shake the world. Neither will the fact that Paris boulevards are thronged with tourists in the old way. Nor that Cannas are brightening Niagara gardens—what's that? Dogs run off with golf balls, too? And there's a controversy over whether the gulls use their feet or their beaks! And a couple in England are doing a mind-reading stunt that nobody can solve—Well, well!

Everybody who has had his vacation wishes he was just starting, and everyone who hasn't wishes his would begin. It's hot. It's sunny. It's lazy by day and the Leonid meteors are beginning to show by night. Ah well—the world wags on. And doubtless will keep wagging. Who cares? It's August.

practically impossible while such trucks are passing. It is hard to believe that most of this unearthly racket is necessary.

Many cities are beginning to give serious attention to this vexatious matter. As an example Circleville is waging a war on this trouble which gives promise of successful results. In some places there is talk of forcing trucks to be routed around or through the edges of municipalities.

It is time for cities which have ordinances against this offensive noise, to make use of them. If the drivers of offending trucks are stopped and taken to court in a number of cities, ways will be found to bring about an abatement of these roaring and screeching monster vehicles which seem to travel in caravans in many instances. This is particularly annoying to many residents who live on state and federal highways within the city.

There used to be campaigns against smoke nuisances in cities. For a time those responsible for such nuisances laughed at the objectors. Finally when public sentiment in many places began to make itself felt, something was done about it, and very promptly.

Maybe the truck noise nuisance is due to go through the same process.

It may have been out of his jurisdiction, but one city magistrate showed sound sense the other day. A 19-year-old lad wished to renounce his American citizenship and become a subject of the Chinese Communist government. He was sent to the hospital to have his head examined.

The conveniences of the modern age are wonderful, but for those who want real satisfaction there's still no substitute for hard work.

One way about as good as some that have been used to test the Americanism of suspects is to find out if they like hash and pie. No true American ever refused either.

Ah, Who Wants Diamonds?

By Ed Creach
(Substituting for Boyle)

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—(P)—If you really can't decide what to get me for Christmas, there's a little doodad on display over at the Waldorf-Astoria that would suit me like chestnut dressing suits roast turkey.

Not that I'm hinting, mind you. As a matter of fact I'm not sure what I'm doing. I've just come back from that $35,000,000 jewel show at the Waldorf and frankly, friend, I'm glitter-happy.

The American National Retail Jewelers, whose baby it is, says it's the biggest display of precious stones and baubles ever held. Acres of diamonds. Bushels of rubies. Pearls by the peck.

In one word: Golly! Anyhow, there I was, holding a cigarette and wishing I had a match, when a big, happy looking fellow held out a tricky little gadget, touched a button and presto! There was flame.

"Thanks," I said, lighting up. "That's quite a lighter."

"You like it?" said the man, Carl Begemann of the American

Safety Razor Corp. "Well, sir, you can have this lighter—"

Gosh, thanks. But—"For $5,000," continued Begemann, looking even happier. I didn't say anything. I couldn't.

"Of course," Begemann said. This tray and that little urn go with it. All 14-carat gold. There are 36 diamonds and 24 rubies in the set. Just right for a Christmas stocking, wouldn't you say?"

This last remark was not aimed at me but another gawker who at least looked as if he might have money, so I drifted away, puffing gingerly at the cigarette which had just had a $5,000 light. It tasted like any other cigarette. Then who should come along but a well-proportioned, brown-eyed blonde named Roma Paige, all decked out in a white nylon bathing suit with pearls dripping from every thread.

"Don't I look expensive?" she asked brightly. "You're supposed to guess how many pearls I'm wearing. If you guess right you win a magnum of champagne."

I guessed 2,315 but that couldn't have been right because a woman's handbag I examined a few minutes later turned out to be covered by 14,000 pearls and Miss Paige's swim suit was much larger than the handbag.

Well, a little larger, anyway. "Actually," whispered Miss Theresa Jacobson, who was guarding the handbag, "There are only 13,999 pearls. Somebody dropped it and one pearl fell off."

"But there are 20 carats of diamonds and 30 carats of rubies and the setting is pure palladium." "Gosh," I said. "And the—ah—price?"

Miss J. looked elaborately casual. "Twenty thousand dollars," she said. "It's the most expensive handbag in the world. We've sold three just like it—one each in Memphis, Miami and Los Angeles."

That did it.

If a woman can pay 20 perfectly good G's for a pearly old handbag that she'll probably leave behind in the movies someday, who says a $5,000 lighter set is too good for uncle?

So as we were saying about that Christmas remembrance—But don't let me know you're ordering it, will you? I want it to be a surprise.

Three Chaplains Are Named

By George E. Sokolsky

The navy has taken the most unusual step of appointing Commander Joshua L. Goldberg as district chaplain of the Third Naval District which includes the New York area. It is the first time that a rabbi has attained this high office in the history of our armed services.

Chaplain Goldberg arrived in the United States in 1917. He immediately enlisted in the Army, saw service in France in the A. E. F. He learned the English language while he was in the army. After the war, he studied for the Rabbinate and served in a synagogue until World War II, when he entered the navy as a chaplain and has been there since. A graduate of the University of Odessa, a linguist, he is an extraordinarily efficient person, but his real genius is his breadth of his ability to cooperate with men of other faiths without compromising his own.

He once said to me: "Religion may be suppressed in some countries. Religious men may be at the throat of each other. Still there is, in America, a basic sportsmanship inherent in democracy. This is still a haven for one's spirit. Another fact that must be kept in mind is that there are no Jewish chaplains in any other navy in the world. And even Great Britain would not allow a chaplain of another faith in the navy. Hence, they have three chiefs of chaplains: Anglican, Roman Catholic and the representatives of the free churches. Jews are inclined in the category of free churches there."

It is perhaps not altogether a coincidence that simultaneous with Chaplain Goldberg's appointment, Rear Admiral Stanton W. Salisbury, USN, should have been appointed chief chaplain of the Navy. There were three of them who, in World War II, built courageously a chaplain service ideal of ministering to the young men of whatever faith—so that the chaplain represented at times, particularly under stress, not only his own religion but all the religions. There were three of them, Captain Stanton W. Salisbury, Commander John R. Robinson and Lieutenant Commander Joshua L. Goldberg. It was father Jack Robinson, as he was always referred to, and Captain Salisbury, who created the Navy chaplain's school at Norfolk, Virginia, and who inspired so many with the ideal of "cooperation without compromise." These three men, ministers of three faiths, formed in the Navy a lasting friendship which transcended every human barrier.

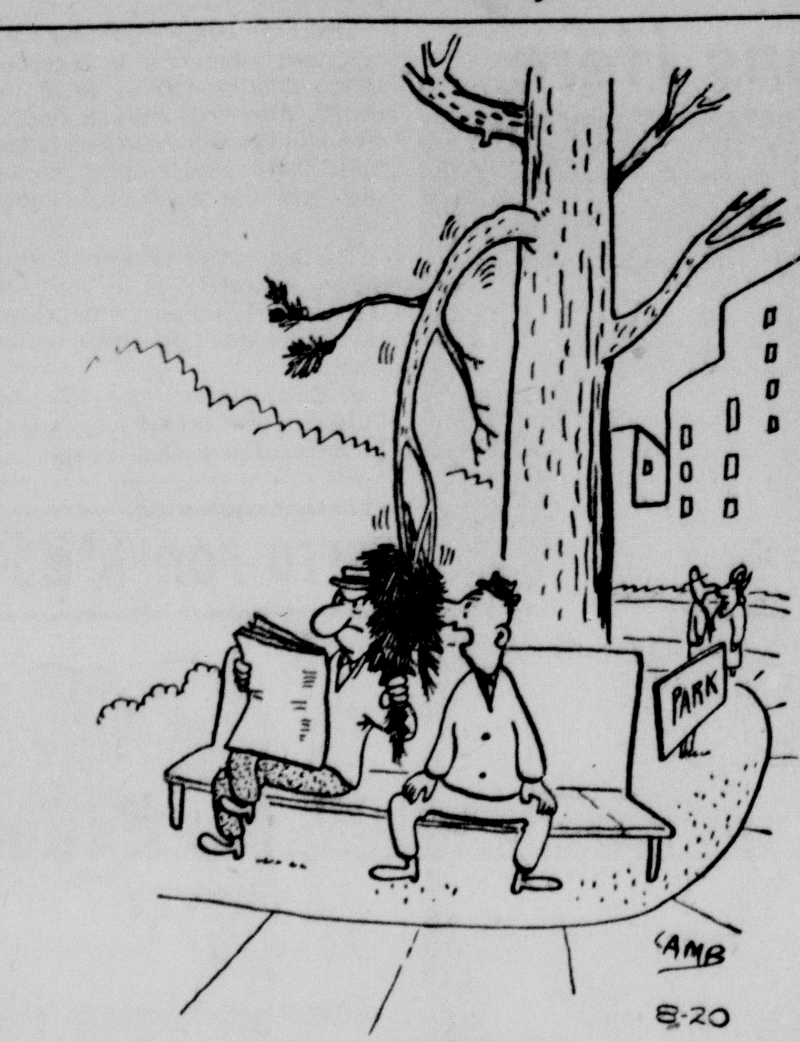

Father Jack Robinson had told his parents that should anything happen to him, they were to communicate with "Josh" Goldberg, and when he did come down in a plane crash, it was Captain Salisbury who tended him during his last moments. It was this spirit of brotherhood that built the Navy Chaplain's Service into something more and different from anything that had been known before.

In these days, when we quarrel over petty matters, it is refreshing to note that men who have devoted their lives to God find a common ground and a deep affection and can labor for the spiritual life of our young people without bigotry. Chaplains Salisbury and Goldberg represent the broadest view and it is interesting that both appointments have been received with enthusiasm by the Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

I like the concept of a broad chaplain's service, for whereas so many are worried these days about the intrusion of the church and the state, our armed forces have the wisdom of knowing that the distressed, the frightened, the homesick, the weary, the wounded, the dying, turn their hearts to God's ministrations and seek comfort and spiritual happiness of God's word and his blessing. Such men as Chaplains Salisbury and Goldberg and the late Jack Robinson never thought in terms of where or in what faith a boy was born, but only that he is a boy, far from home, serving his country — and he needs a friend. Such men have a tremendous capacity for friendship and they lavish it upon our sons. Should we ever have to go to war again, we shall find this comfort in our sleepless nights, that our sons are not alone, but are watched over by such men as these.

Diet and Health Ectopic Pregnancy Demand Attention

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EVERY woman should have some knowledge of the condition known as ectopic pregnancy. I say this because during recent months, I have been struck by the number of needless deaths from this cause; deaths which might have been easily prevented had the women themselves known enough about their symptoms to have sought proper medical aid in time.

An ectopic pregnancy is one which occurs outside the womb. It may take place in the ovary itself; or even in the abdominal cavity, but the most usual location is within the fallopian tube which leads from the ovary to the womb. In these situations, there is grave danger of rupture and fatal hemorrhage if treatment is too long delayed.

Fortunately, however, there are signs that such a pregnancy exists before this stage is reached. About three-fourths of the women with this condition have irregular bleeding. Over one-third have pain in the upper arms and chest. Also, there may be symptoms of irritation of the bladder, such as pain on emptying the bladder, and frequent emptying. There may be painful bowel movements, pain in the lower part of the spine, or diarrhea.

Pain in Abdomen

It would appear that pain in the abdomen, often with vomiting and faintness, is the most constant symptom of a ruptured ectopic pregnancy. In addition, there is pallor or paleness of the skin and the patient may become very sick. The temperature varies from 99 F. to 100 F. while the pulse rate is increased to over 100 per minute. The abdomen may be swollen, but there is no stiffness or rigidity of the abdominal muscles.

This type of pregnancy is likely to occur in women who find it difficult to become pregnant. A number of them have had one or two previous pregnancies, ending by early or premature delivery of the baby. Enlargement of the ovaries is another factor which may contribute to this condition, as is chronic appendicitis.

Immediately upon the diagnosis of ectopic pregnancy, an operation should be performed. In this operation the affected tube is completely removed, with or without removal of the ovary, depending on its condition. If the patient shows symptoms of shock or collapse, injections into a vein of blood or plasma, which is the liquid part of the blood, should be started at once.

Any woman who believes that she is pregnant should consult her doctor at once and remain under his care throughout the period of pregnancy. When making regular visits to his office, she should describe to him any symptoms which might possibly indicate ectopic pregnancy so that he can make sure whether or not such a condition exists. However, if symptoms of a ruptured ectopic pregnancy come on, there should be no waiting until the time for a regular visit. An emergency call to the doctor should be made at once.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. V.: What is the cause of aplastic anemia and what is the treatment for this condition?

Answer: The cause of aplastic anemia cannot be determined, in most instances. It is possible that it may be due to poisoning which damages the blood-forming organs. There is no treatment which would produce a cure, insofar as is known at the present time. Repeated blood transfusions act as a palliative measure. When it is caused by drugs such as arsenic or the sulfonamide drugs, then the withdrawal of these drugs leads to complete recovery.

Steel Wage Demands Exceed Profit, Claim

NEW YORK, Aug. 20—(P)—The president of the Republic Steel Corp. declared today that "the staggering demands" of the CIO United Steelworkers would cost his company more each year than it ever had made except in 1948.

C. M. White, head of the nation's third largest steel company, told a presidential fact-finding board that the union's 30-cents-an-hour package plan would cost Republic more than $38,000,000 a year.

He presented figures to show that the corporation's profits had exceeded this figure only last year, when they were $46,400,000, and said that earnings had dropped so sharply that they now were running at a rate of less than one-half of 1948's level.

"In the teeth of the grim operating conditions we are now experiencing," he declared, "we firmly believe that Republic cannot grant a wage or other cost increase. To do so would, I believe in the long run, harm those who seek it."

Ohio's Population Boosted by Births

COLUMBUS, Aug. 20—(P)—Ohio's births exceeded its deaths by 105,177 last year, the state department of health said today.

The department's vital statistics division reported 185,696 births and only 80,519 deaths.

The birth rate was seven percent below 1947's record high. But more children are being born in hospitals, the department said. In 1949, 93 percent were born in hospitals.

SYNOPSIS

Terry Austin commands the attention of passengers aboard a giant clipper winging through the air from Guatemala to New York. She is poised, reserved, richly attired, an unusual beauty. Notes artist Jim Southard, a fellow passenger, years to do her portrait. Landing at LaGuardia, Terry is met by an old school chum, Helen Lanna, who introduces her to Southard, mentioning that she is the daughter of a famed empire builder. Mark Austin, recently killed in an airplane crash.

CHAPTER THREE

A PLEASANT maid opened the door for them when they reached the apartment on the tenth floor, and Helen took Terry to the guest room, which was on a corner, spacious and graciously furnished. She said, "Get out of your suit into something comfortably sloppy and we'll have a celebration supper on a tray—the way we used to, remember, at the Embassy when no one was looking? When your wires came and I had checked with the airport, Margaret gave me my dinner—not too much of it. Haul something out of a bag, we'll do the real unpacking later." She was not a demonstrative woman but now she put her arms around Terry and hugged her. "I'm so happy to see you, dear."

Terry's heart turned over with gratitude, for this long, rare friendship. She looked at the small face lovingly, a face distinguished only by its expression, the lively brown eyes and curly red hair.

"You don't know how glad I am to be here," she said truthfully.

"Well, get washed or whatever, and make it snappy. We have only the rest of the night to do our scratch-the-surface talking." She eyed the matching bags wistfully. "Alligator," she murmured, "such lavishes. I'll be back for you in ten minutes. If you want anything, yell. I'm next door."

Terry got out her keys, opened one of the bags and took out a soft wool robe and slippers. She took off her suit and blouse, hung them in the closet, and went into the bathroom and looked with longing at the tub and shower. But that could wait. She washed, brushed her hair, and reddened her lips. Dusting powder over her face, she looked at her self in the mirror. No one would dream that she was frightened, she thought. Perhaps all the many years of safety had set an imperishable seal upon her—the way she looked, and moved and spoke. But once the seal was broken . . .

Her dressing case was open. She took from it the small, silver-framed picture of her father and set it on the bedside table just as Helen knocked on the door.

"Ready?" she asked. "What a lovely robe." She walked over to the bed and looked at the picture, and added, sighing, "He was the best looking man . . ."

ing young man. Before he died he owned properties in Nicaragua, Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador . . .

Terry put down her coffee cup. She said, "I shan't go back, Helen. I'm staying here."

"That's wonderful." Helen leaned back against the couch and said thoughtfully, "You might get a place in the country. Connecticut?" she asked herself. "The Johnsons want to sell theirs, it's small, and quite perfect. They'd sell furnished, unless, of course, you want to ship your furniture out—not that I can see it in a Connecticut farmhouse, but—"

Terry said, "I haven't any furniture. Helen, I haven't anything"—her hand went to the string of pearls at her throat—except these, my clothes and furs, and some jewelry of my mother's. And an income of about two hundred dollars a month."

Helen's eyes widened and her mouth was jarred open. She stared at her friend in bewilderment. After a moment she said, "I don't believe it, I can't."

"But what happened? I mean, why? That is . . ."

She gave up, shaking her red head. She asked, after a moment, "Can you tell me, Terry? From the beginning?"

"The beginning was long ago and I don't know much about it. My father, I suppose, overextended himself and was steeped in the sore of intrigue that is common enough, has always been. After he mother died, when I was eight years old, after he had decided to send me to Paris, he immersed himself in business, as a substitute for everything, for wife and child, for happiness, perhaps, and love. He liked pulling strings. He grew rich pulling them, and it wasn't the money that interested him, I'm sure. It was the power. The war curtailed some of his activities, stepped up others. And there was always border disputes and revolutions. He backed the wrong man last time—and lost everything. I don't know how. It was explained to me by the lawyers, but I still don't know how. He wasn't alone in his interests, of course. He couldn't be. When he realized—he took the plane out and crashed it."

"Terry?"

"Yes," said Terry soberly. "There were a few things that couldn't be touched legally. One was the insurance he had taken out years ago when I was born and had almost forgotten, though the premiums were kept up. I turned in the jewelry he'd given me, there was a good deal of it, and kept only my mother's, the pearls, her engagement ring, and some old pieces. He gave the pearls to her just before she died. My furs . . ."

Her voice trailed off, and she looked at Helen blindly for a moment. "That's how it is."

Features at the Theaters

A secret kept by Ayn Rand for ten years has come out.

She wrote the best-selling novel, "Fountainhead," which swept the country a few years ago.

To get background material for the book, which is about an idealistic architect, she took a job in the office of a famous New York architect in 1933.

To her co-workers, she was a regular employee but, to Ely Kahn, the architect, she was there to learn about architecture for six months.

How well she learned her work is told by the authenticity of the details in the film version of her work coming to the Fayette.

FAYETTE THEATER

"Roseanne McCoy!" the hillbilly girl, comes to the Fayette for Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The plot is based on the Hatfield-McCoy feud and stars Farley Granger, Jean Evans and Raymond Massey.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, "The Fountainhead" brings Gary Cooper and Patricia Neal to portray Ayn Rand's story.

Cooper plays the independent Howard Roark who refuses to be corrupted in his art while Patricia Neal portrays the warm-blooded Dominique, who looks so cold on the surface.

STATE THEATER

What happens after a traveling minister sacrifices his life to save a gambler is told in "Hellfire," coming to the State midnight Saturday and playing Sunday through Tuesday.

Marie Windsor and William Elliott star in this western.

In the second half of this twin-feature, Leo Gorcey and the Bowery Boys tie up the show and your stomach with laughs in "Hold That Baby."

You'll be humming "chills run up and down my spine" if you visit the State on Wednesday and Thursday.

Bela Lugosi and Boris Karloff provide something new in the way of horrors in "The Invisible Ray."

Co-starring on this program of chills is "The Invisible Woman."

On Friday and Saturday, Monte Hall lays down the "Law of the Golden West" in the opener of a big program.

Farm Bureau Plans Dedication Monday

Workers were polishing up the new Farm Bureau building on South Fayette Street today in preparation for its official opening and dedication Monday night. The public was invited to inspect the new $86,000 building at 6:30 P. M. Monday, when its doors will be thrown open.

John Sims, general manager of the Farm Bureau Co-Op in Columbus, and Winston W. Hill, city manager of Washington C. H., were scheduled for talks on the dedication program.

Plans were made to hold the ceremony outside the building, weather permitting. The All-County School Band will play.

New shrubs have been planted outside the building; windows shined up; the display window decorated; a new sign erected on the front of the building and plans made to put the finishing touches on the building next Monday.

Farm Bureau offices were moved into the second floor of the building while work was still in progress.

Antarctic icebergs are often a mile or more in length, and a few have been found to measure 20 to 30 miles.

A tablespoon of anchovy paste and a teaspoon of finely grated onion (pulp and juice) may be added to a package of cream cheese and then used for a cracker spread to serve with tomato juice cocktail. Soften a three-ounce package of the cheese and mix in the anchovy and onion flavorings thoroughly. Sprinkle a little finely grated parsley over the spread for color, if you like.

Two hundred thousand farms in Ohio have electricity—the largest amount of rural electrification in the nation.

3 Trapshooters From County In National Meet

Husband-Wife Class
Won Twice by Raders
In Top Competition

The keen eyes of at least three Fayette Countyans will be sighted on the flying clay discs at the Grand American Trapshoot at Vandalia next week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Rader of Blessing Road, near Jeffersonville, and Roy Downs of Browning Road, near Bloomington, will join deadeye shooters from every state in the union, Canada, Mexico, Cuba and the Canal Zone.

Downs and the Raders will go to Vandalia on Monday. Some 2,000 participants have already set up tents and trailers on the opening day, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Rader have twice won the husband and wife title at the national meet, in 1942 and 1947.

Shooting from 16 yards two years ago, Mrs. Rader broke 99 out of 100 flying targets.

Rader had to be content with second-place in the family. He broke 98. Their score of 197 out of 200 made them champions of the U. S. in that class.

Mrs. Rader placed second in the state trapshoot last June with 188 out of 200 while she and her husband won the husband and wife title with the same total.

She also received a chest of silver for shooting the highest score on one day of the meet.

Mrs. Rader said she has been trapshooting for "about ten years" while her husband has been at it for about 15 years.

She said they shoot almost every Sunday at meets held in Jamestown, Springfield and other towns near here.

The average of their scores at these clubs determines the handicap, or distance they will stand from the trap, at Vandalia.

Both the Raders are averaging in the 90's as they get ready for the husband and wife contest Monday.

The Vandalia meet is the granddaddy of trapshoots and everybody has a chance. No person has ever won first prize in the feature Grand American Handicap twice.

It carries a few thousand dollars in prize money with it and has been won by a 14-year-old boy, a 70-year-old man, a preacher, farmer, miner, railway conductor and rancher.

This 50th national meet has been named the "Golden Grand" and will camp for nine days on the home grounds of the Amateur Trapshooting Association.

Last year's "Roaring Grand" feature handicap was won by John W. Schenk, a truck gardener from Sharpsburg, Pa., who broke 99 out of 100 from 19 yards.

Only three shooters in 49 years have broken 100 straight.

The handicap is called the most unpredictable event in sports. The aces usually fire in vain anywhere from 16 to 25 yards behind the trap that catapults the discs while the "unknowns" capture the title from up front.

Mrs. Rader said that the meet also includes contests for veterans, fathers and sons, a state champions meet and the Women's North American Clay Target Meet.

The last-named event has been won eight times by a California woman.

The climax will be the colorful

Grand American Handicap on Friday. Here's wishing luck and good shooting to Downs and the Raders.

Bar Exam Passed By Two from Here

Two young men from Washington C. H. today were all set to enter the legal profession.

John B. Morton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Morton, and Edmund S. Woodmansee, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Woodmansee, were among the 371 who passed the state bar examination last June 28-30.

Grading of the examination papers has been completed and the announcement of the successful young attorneys has just made in a state supreme court statement. The court said 122 failed.

Neither Morton nor Woodmansee has formally announced definite plans for the future. Successful completion of their courses in law and the state examination qualifies them to practice law in Ohio.

Those who passed will be inducted by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant of the supreme court. The ceremonies will be held in Columbus next Wednesday, Cincinnati Thursday and Cleveland Friday. In Cincinnati they will be in the courthouse and in Cleveland at the Allerton Hotel.

O. W. House Carries Off First Place

Columbus Mayor To Speak At Lions Meeting

Mayor James Rhodes
To Speak on Topic
'Freedom of Athletics'

Mayor James A. Rhodes of Columbus, prominent political and athletic figure, will speak to members of the Washington C. H. Lions Club next Tuesday night at the Country Club.

Guests at the meeting will be the members of the Board of Directors of the Fayette County Fair.

Mayor Rhodes has chosen as his topic "Freedom of Athletics."

And he is well qualified to speak on it. He has been described as "America's most sports-minded mayor."

He is currently president of the National Amateur Athletic Union (AAU), the All-American Newspaperboys Sports Scholarships Inc., the National Caddy Tournament Association and the Chic Harley Foundation.

Additionally, Mayor Rhodes is president of the Ohio Public Links Association and was named Columbus "sports man of the year" for 1948.

A Republican, Mayor Rhodes once held the distinction of being the nation's youngest top city official. He was elected mayor of Columbus in 1943 and again in 1947. He was 34 when he took office as mayor of Columbus for the first time.

He entered the political arena at the age of 24, when he was picked as a committeeman of Columbus' 16th Ward.

During his early years as mayor, Rhodes played a prominent role in founding the Ohio Conference of Mayors, which later merged to become the Ohio Association of Municipalities.

Carl McCoy's Bull Wins Blue Ribbons

J. Carl McCoy's young Hereford bull has been doing all right in the shows at Ohio Fairs this summer.

After taking his ribbon here in the summer yearling class, he went on to win three first places in shows at fairs in Xenia, Wilmington and Hilliards. He also was judged the grand champion at Wilmington and the reserve champion at Hilliards.

McCoy said he planned to enter him in the shows at the London and Ohio State Fairs. Later he plans to take him to Canfield for the fair there and then to Lancaster for the state Hereford Breeders Association show.

Radio Give-away Ban

them, or what could be done to save affected shows if the rules stick.

The radio giveaway has been a bone of contention for months. The FCC has not been alone in trying to stem the tide of giant jackpots awarded for answering a question, identifying a voice or giving the name of a mystery tune.

Radio performers have been among the most vocal critics. They contend the jackpot merchandise and cash has replaced talent on many programs and lowered the quality of radio programming as a whole. Comedian Fred Allen declared a personal war on giveaways last season after "Stop The Music" cut sharply into his audience ratings, and later announced his retirement from the air for a year.

Youth Is Held On Serious Charge

James Reynolds Graston, 16, Louisville, Ky., admitted he attempted to criminally attack Mrs. Jack Wolfe at her home on the CCC Highway a mile east of Sabina, Wednesday, when he was taken into custody by Clinton County authorities and held to the grand jury under $5,000 bond. He is now in the Clinton County jail.

The attempted attack occurred at the Wolfe home near the Fayette-Clinton County line and Graston previously had broken into the Virgil Cline fruit market near the Wolfe home.

Following the attempted rape, Graston hitch-hiked a ride to the Reesville crossroads where he was picked by Sheriff Howard Botts, of Clinton County and Deputy Sheriff Floyd Foote.

Graston told officers he had escaped recently from an institution at Frankfort, Ky., where he was sent for grand larceny.

East Street Job Nears Completion

Work of resurfacing East Street was rapidly nearing the end Saturday noon, with the final course being laid on the square between Fayette and North Streets and only the finishing touches remaining which would require a short time.

The street has been resurfaced with hot mix for a depth of three inches, during this week and the work, done by Blue Rock Quarries, is highly satisfactory.

Harold Pyle, superintendent in charge of the project, expressed appreciation for the hearty cooperation of the city officials and the public generally while the work was under way here.

Flying Saucer Clue

He, his wife and his son left so suddenly that the rooms were still strewn with personal effects and a bundle of soiled laundry was left in the living room.

Capt. Belk said his office had been making every effort to locate Caldwell's son in the hope of obtaining engineering information about the flying disc.

Belk pointed out that Caldwell would be in his 70's if alive now, and said it was quite possible he may be dead.

The model found in the tobacco shed, Capt. Belk continued, has "no specific value" but his office is trying to run down the engineering idea behind it.

A quarter-horsepower model of the disc was tested and flown

Salvation Army Truck Is Coming

Cast-off Clothing
Wanted for Needy

Clean out those clothes closets and catch-all rooms... the Salvation Army truck is coming to Washington C. H. again on Aug. 25.

All the old but still serviceable clothing and shoes that are only gathering dust can be put to good and practical use by those less fortunate if they are given to the Salvation Army.

In fact, just about anything and everything from socks to furniture is distributed by the SA among the needy.

The truck will pick up the contributions right at the homes here and take it all to the headquarters in Columbus where it will be renovated and rehabilitated. Then, when an emergency arises—when a family loses a home and everything in it, for example—the Salvation Army will dig into the stocks of cast-offs with enough to help solve the serious human problem of living.

W. J. Hilty, superintendent of the county schools, is the chairman of the Fayette County unit of the Salvation Army. Word left at his office in the Court House (Phone 8361) will bring the truck right to the door to pick up any contributions.

The truck comes to Washington C. H. periodically—every two or three months—and Supt. Hilty said it usually makes pickups at from 75 to 100 homes. Even then, he added, more of everything could be used.

Temperature Dip Drives Residents Under Blankets

Fayette County residents went under blankets Friday night as the temperature dipped to 54 degrees, lowest minimum since last spring.

Coyt A. Stookey, weather observer, reported the mercury went to a low of 51 Friday night to give residents of Fayette County a sample of what fall will be like.

The dip was welcomed by residents, who have been sweltering through the hot, humid summer.

As the temperature nosed downward, thoughts came of crisp fall nights, back to school and turning leaves.

Last year the cool spell came a little earlier than it did this year. Stookey reported that on August 15, 16 and 17 last year the temperature dipped to 54 degrees.

On August 1, 1948, the mercury read 55 and 53 on August 5 and 7.

This year a temperature of 54 was registered August 1 and 19.

"WHAT'S THIS PRESCRIPTION FOR?"

When you ask your pharmacist to tell you, on the basis of your prescription, what your illness is, you ask him a question to which you should not expect an answer.

Many important drugs prove useful in a variety of diseases. The use of a certain drug in your prescription may not serve, therefore, as an exact clue to the nature of your illness. Quinine, for example—long known for its qualities in combating dreaded malaria—has frequently been prescribed in treating other conditions. Then, too, some drugs are known to counteract specific symptoms only, while the same symptoms may be observed in more than one type of illness. The doctor who examined you and diagnosed your condition will have given you all the necessary information. It is not within the pharmacist's province to diagnose illness. His is the task of preparing the prescribed medication in a manner that will be the most effective. His scientific training enables him to overcome chemical or physical incompatibilities that may present themselves in a mixture of various ingredients.

Your pharmacist's skill makes sure that each dose of the finished product will contain the exact amount of the drugs your doctor intends you to have.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company, Detroit 32, Michigan.
